Policy Statement

Mental health is a state of wellbeing in which every individual realises his or her own potential, can cope with the normal stresses of life, can work productively and fruitfully, and is able to make a contribution to her or his community (World Health Organization).

At River Bank Primary School, we aim to promote positive mental health for every member of our staff and pupil body. We pursue this aim using both universal, whole school approaches and specialised, targeted approaches aimed at vulnerable pupils.

In addition to promoting positive mental health, we aim to recognise and respond to mental ill health. By developing and implementing practical, relevant and effective mental health policies and procedures we can promote a safe and stable environment for pupils affected both directly and indirectly by mental ill health.

Scope

This policy describes River Bank's approach to promoting positive mental health and wellbeing. This policy is intended as guidance for all staff including non-teaching staff and governors.

This policy should be read in conjunction with our safeguarding policy; our supporting pupils at school with medical conditions and administration of medicine policy, in cases where a pupil's mental health overlaps with or is linked to a medical issue; and our special educational needs and disability (SEND) policy where a pupil has an identified special educational need.

The Policy Aims to:

- Promote positive mental health in all staff and pupils
- Increase understanding and awareness of common mental health issues
- Alert staff to early warning signs of mental ill health
- Provide support to staff working with young people with mental health issues
- Provide support to pupils experiencing mental ill health and their peers and parents/carers
- Provide support to pupils whose parents/carers are experiencing mental health issues

Role of all staff in support their own wellbeing

All staff are expected to:

- Treat each other with empathy and respect
- Keep in mind the workload and wellbeing of other members of staff
- Support other members of staff if they become stressed, such as by providing practical assistance or emotional reassurance
- Report honestly about their wellbeing and let other members of staff know when they need support
- Follow the school's policy on out-of-school hours working, including guidance on when it is and isn't reasonable to respond to communications
- Contribute positively towards morale and team spirit
- Use shared areas respectfully, such as the staff room or offices
- Take part in training opportunities that promote their wellbeing

Managing specific wellbeing issues for staff

The school will support and discuss options with any staff that raise wellbeing issues, such as if they are experiencing significant stress at school or in their personal lives.

- Where possible, support will be given by line managers or senior staff. This could be through:
- Sign posting to external support, such as counselling or occupational health services
- Completing a risk assessment and following through with any actions identified
- Reassessing their workload and deciding what tasks to prioritise
- At all times, the confidentiality and dignity of staff will be maintained.

Common Mental Health Issues

Common mental health issues include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Self-harm
- Depression
- Anxiety, panic attacks and phobias
- Obsessions and compulsions
- Suicidal feelings
- Eating problems
- Psychosis

Information on resources and sources of support are given in Appendix A.

Procedure in Cases of Concern

Any member of staff who is concerned about the mental health or wellbeing of a pupil should speak to the Mental Health Lead in the first instance. If there is a fear that the pupil is in danger of immediate harm then the normal child protection procedures should be followed with an immediate referral to the Safeguarding Team. If the pupil presents a medical emergency then the normal procedures for medical emergencies should be followed, including alerting the first aid staff and contacting the emergency services if necessary.

Where a referral to the Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service (CAMHS) is appropriate, this will be led and managed by the Mental Health Lead or the Safeguarding Team. Appendix B gives details of what makes a good CAMHS referral.

Any member of staff who has concerns about their own mental health may wish to speak to one of the Mental Health First Aiders, or contact a relevant organisation to access support (see Appendix C).

Special educational Needs and Disability (SEND)

Children with Special Education Needs and disabilities (SEND) are at increased risk of social exclusion, bullying, displaying behavioural problems and/or mental health problems when compared to those children without SEND.

We need to be aware of the increased vulnerability and risk of developing mental health issues for pupils with SEND, particularly those with autism (ASD).

Appendix D provides details of specific strategies aimed at preventing social exclusion and bullying of pupils with SEND and to support them when issues affecting their mental health arise.

Warning Signs

School staff may become aware of warning signs that indicate a pupil is experiencing mental health or emotional wellbeing issues. These warning signs should always be taken seriously and staff observing any of these warning signs should communicate their concerns to the Safeguarding Team.

Possible warning signs include:

- Physical signs of harm that are repeated or appear non-accidental
- Changes in eating / sleeping habits
- Increased isolation from friends or family, becoming socially withdrawn
- Changes in activity and mood
- Lowering of academic achievement
- Talking or joking about self-harm or suicide
- Abusing drugs or alcohol
- Expressing feelings of failure, uselessness or loss of hope
- Changes in clothing – e.g. long sleeves in warm weather
- Secretive behaviour
- Skipping PE or getting changed secretly
- Lateness to or absence from school
- Repeated physical pain or nausea with no evident cause

Managing disclosures

A pupil may choose to disclose concerns about themselves or a friend to any member of staff therefore all staff need to know how to respond appropriately to a disclosure.

If a pupil chooses to disclose concerns about their own mental health or that of a friend to a member of staff, the member of staff's response should always be calm, supportive and non-judgemental.

Staff should listen, rather than advise, with our first thoughts being of the pupil's emotional and physical safety rather than of exploring 'Why?' For more information about how to handle mental health disclosures sensitively see Appendix G.

All disclosures should be recorded on CPOMs (under safeguarding incident; cause for concern and emotional related) and held on the pupil's confidential file. This should include :

- Date
- The initials of the member of staff to whom the disclosure was made (and in brackets, their role e.g. teacher)
- Main points from the conversation
- Agreed next steps

This information should be shared with the Safeguarding Team who will offer support and advice about next steps.

Confidentiality

We should be honest with regards to the issue of confidentiality. We will record any disclosures made on CPOMs alerting the safeguarding team.

We should never promise to keep the information a child has shared with us to ourselves.

Always share disclosures with the Safeguarding Team, this helps to safeguard our own emotional wellbeing as we are no longer solely responsible for the pupil, it ensures continuity of care in our absence and it provides an extra source of ideas and support. We should explain this to the pupil.

Parents/carers must always be informed of any incident, pupils may choose to tell their parents/carers themselves. We should always give pupils the option of us informing parents for them or with them.

If a child gives us reason to believe that there may be underlying child protection issues, parents should not be informed, but the Safeguarding Team must be informed immediately.

Working with Parents and Carers

Where it is deemed appropriate to inform parents/carers, we need to be sensitive in our approach. Before disclosing to parents/carers we should consider the following questions (on a case by case basis):

- Can the meeting happen face to face? This is preferable.
- Where should the meeting happen? At school, at their home or somewhere neutral?

- What are the aims of the meeting?
- Who should be present? Consider parents, the pupil, and other members of staff.

It can be shocking and upsetting for parents to learn of their child's issues and many may respond with anger, fear or upset during the first conversation. We should be accepting of this (within reason) and give the parent time to reflect.

We should always highlight further sources of information and give them leaflets to take away where possible as they will often find it hard to take much in whilst coming to terms with the news that you are sharing. Sharing sources of further support aimed specifically at parents/carers can also be helpful too e.g. parent helplines and forums.

We should always provide clear means of contacting us with further questions and consider booking in a follow up meeting or phone call right away as parents often have many questions as they process the information. Finish each meeting with an agreed next step and always keep a brief record of the meeting on the child's confidential record (CPOMS).

Working with All Parents and Carers

Parents/carers are often very welcoming of support and information from the school about supporting their children's emotional and mental health. In order to support parents /carers we will:

- Highlight sources of information and support about common mental health issues on our school website
- Ensure that all parents are aware of who to talk to, and how to go about this, if they have concerns about their own child or a friend of their child
- Make our mental health policy easily accessible to parents
- Share ideas about how parents can support positive mental health in their children
- Keep parents informed about the mental health topics their children are learning about in PSHE and share ideas for extending and exploring this learning at home

Supporting Peers

When a pupil is suffering from mental health issues, it can be a difficult time for their friends. Friends often want to support but do not know how. In the case of self-harm or eating disorders, it is possible that friends may learn unhealthy coping mechanisms from each other. In order to keep peers safe, we will consider on a case by case basis which friends may need additional support. Support will be provided either in one to one or group settings and will be guided by conversations by the pupil who is suffering and their parents with whom we will discuss:

- What it is helpful for friends to know and what they should not be told
- How friends can best support
- Things friends should avoid doing / saying which may inadvertently cause upset
- Warning signs that their friend needs help (e.g. signs of relapse)

Additionally, we will want to highlight with peers:

- Where and how to access support for themselves
- Safe sources of further information about their friend's condition
- Healthy ways of coping with the difficult emotions they may be feeling

Training

All staff will receive regular training about recognising and responding to mental health issues as part of their regular child protection training in order to enable them to keep pupils safe.

Training opportunities for staff that require more in-depth knowledge will be considered as part of our performance management process and additional CPD will be supported throughout the year where it becomes appropriate due to developing situations with one or more pupils.

Auditing our Provision

We will audit our mental health and emotional wellbeing provision on a regular basis using the Luton Schools Mental Health and Emotional Wellbeing Review Tool or the questions given in Appendix H.

Measuring and Monitoring

Pupils' Mental Wellbeing will be monitored, a survey will be carried out annually, in February, on pupils in years 2 and 6. Details of measuring and monitoring are given in Appendix I.

Guidance and Further Information

Sources of further information, guidance and advice are listed in Appendix J.

Policy Review

This policy will be reviewed every year as a minimum.

Further information and sources of support about common mental health issues

Information and guidance about the issues most commonly seen in school-aged children is given below. The links will take you through to the most relevant page of the listed website.

Self-harm

Self-harm describes any behaviour where a young person causes harm to themselves in order to cope with thoughts, feelings or experiences they are not able to manage in any other way. It most frequently takes the form of cutting, burning or non-lethal overdoses in adolescents, while younger children and young people with special needs are more likely to pick or scratch at wounds, pull out their hair or bang or bruise themselves.

Online support relating to self-harm includes:

- Self-Harm Support: <https://www.selfharm.co.uk/>
- National Self-Harm Network: <https://www.nshn.co.uk/>
- Young Minds <https://www.youngminds.org.uk/young-person/my-feelings/self-harm/>

Depression

Ups and downs are a normal part of life for all of us, but for someone who is suffering from depression these ups and downs may be more extreme. Feelings of failure, hopelessness, numbness or sadness may invade their day-to-day life over an extended period of weeks or months, and have a significant impact on their behaviour and ability and motivation to engage in day-to-day activities.

Online support relating to depression includes:

- Young Minds <https://www.youngminds.org.uk/young-person/mental-health-conditions/depression/>

Anxiety, panic attacks and phobias

Anxiety can take many forms in children and young people, and it is something that each of us experiences at low levels as part of normal life. When thoughts of anxiety, fear or panic are repeatedly present over several weeks or months and/or they are beginning to impact on a young person's ability to access or enjoy day-to-day life, intervention is needed.

Online support relating to anxiety, panic attacks and phobias includes:

- Anxiety UK: <https://www.anxietyuk.org.uk/>

Obsessions and compulsions

Obsessions describe intrusive thoughts or feelings that enter our minds which are disturbing or upsetting; compulsions are the behaviours we carry out in order to manage those thoughts or feelings. For example, a young person may be constantly worried that their house will burn down if they don't turn off all switches before leaving the house. They may respond to these thoughts by repeatedly checking switches, perhaps returning home several times to do so. Obsessive compulsive disorder (OCD) can take many forms – it is not just about cleaning and checking.

Online support for obsessions and compulsions can be found at:

- OCD UK <https://www.ocduk.org/>

Suicidal feelings

Young people may experience complicated thoughts and feelings about wanting to end their own lives. Some young people never act on these feelings though they may openly discuss and explore them, while other young people die suddenly from suicide apparently out of the blue.

Online support for suicidal feelings includes:

- Prevention of young suicide UK – PAPYRUS: <https://www.papyrus-uk.org/>
- On the edge: ChildLine spotlight report on suicide:
- Stamp out Suicide <http://www.stampoutsuicide.co.uk/>

Eating problems

Food, weight and shape may be used as a way of coping with, or communicating about, difficult thoughts, feelings and behaviours that a young person experiences day to day. Some young people develop eating disorders such as anorexia (where food intake is restricted), binge eating disorder and bulimia nervosa (a cycle of bingeing and purging). Other young people, particularly those of primary or preschool age, may develop problematic behaviours around food including refusing to eat in certain situations or with certain people. This can be a way of communicating messages the child does not have the words to convey.

Online support for eating problems is available at:

- Beat – the eating disorders charity: <https://www.beateatingdisorders.org.uk/>

Psychosis

Psychosis is a general term to describe a mental health problem in which a young person experiences changes in thinking, perception, mood and behaviour which can severely disrupt their life. For a young person experiencing psychosis it can be hard to maintain relationships and friendships and can significantly affect their ability to look after themselves and fully concentrate with activities at work and at school.

Meeting the mental health needs of children and young people with Special Educational Needs and disabilities (SEND)

Children and young people with Special Educational Needs and disabilities (SEND) are at increased risk of social exclusion, bullying and displaying behavioural and / or mental health problems when compared to those children without SEND

We need to be aware of the increased vulnerability and risk of developing mental health issues for pupils with SEND.

Intervention should be at every level within our school and should include school ethos and staff training. We will promote positive messages about mental health and resilience to let pupils know help is available and they will not be stigmatised. We will strive to create a culture that fosters confidence in pupils to approach any member of staff if they are struggling with mental health issues. We will also promote sources of help and advice such as Childline around the school so that a child who may not yet be ready to talk to someone in school can still access support.

To promote the mental health of pupils with SEND we will use the following practical strategies:

- Specific support around emotional wellbeing, such as, Zones of Regulation.
- Children with autism were highlighted as a particular group for whom anxiety can be a real problem and there should be support consistently available for children with ASD. We will endeavour to regularly check in with pupils with autism to ascertain their emotional one and we will specifically teach them about emotions, as required.
- Regular social/ social skills groups. These could be in school interventions, after school clubs or lunchtime clubs.
- Additional training for school staff about understanding children and young people with additional needs. Staff need to notice more when children and young people with SEND are struggling with their emotions, often related to their SEN; becoming overwhelmed, feeling out of control, going from a low level of difficult emotions to a high level very quickly. In addition, peer factors; feeling rejected, picked on and excluded leading to feeling lonely and less sense of belonging.
- Staff need to actively demonstrate they have time and availability for children and young people with SEND to feel really listened to/ heard – they may need more time to be able to identify and express issues.
- Clearly identify those members of staff who are trained to support pupils with their emotional wellbeing needs.
- Ensure there are advocates in school for children and young people with SEND.
- All pupils should be taught about children with SEND and in particular, autism and the kinds of difficulties they have.
- The curriculum should include, appropriately differentiated for all pupils, about mental health issues stemming from self-image issues and social media.
- Hold regular assemblies in school to address emotional wellbeing and mental health issues.

- All pupils should be taught the benefits to emotional wellbeing of helping others / not being self-absorbed. Young people in schools could do fundraising activities where the proceeds could be donated to causes that specifically support children and young people with SEND and their families.

Children and young people with SEND need to feel 'safe and valued' in schools and within the community and we will aim to ensure that this issue is regularly considered in our school.

Appendix G: Talking to pupils when they make mental health disclosures

The advice below is from pupils themselves, in their own words, together with some additional ideas to help you in initial conversations with pupils when they disclose mental health concerns. This advice should be considered alongside relevant school policies on pastoral care and child protection and discussed with relevant colleagues as appropriate.

Focus on listening

“She listened, and I mean REALLY listened. She didn’t interrupt me or ask me to explain myself or anything, she just let me talk and talk and talk. I had been unsure about talking to anyone but I knew quite quickly that I’d chosen the right person to talk to and that it would be a turning point.”

If a pupil has come to you, it’s because they trust you and feel a need to share their difficulties with someone. Let them talk. Ask occasional open questions if you need to in order to encourage them to keep exploring their feelings and opening up to you. Just letting them pour out what they’re thinking will make a huge difference and marks a huge first step in recovery. Up until now they may not have admitted even to themselves that there is a problem.

Don’t talk too much

“Sometimes it’s hard to explain what’s going on in my head – it doesn’t make a lot of sense and I’ve kind of gotten used to keeping myself to myself. But just ‘cos I’m struggling to find the right words doesn’t mean you should help me. Just keep quiet, I’ll get there in the end.”

The pupil should be talking at least three quarters of the time. If that’s not the case then you need to redress the balance. You are here to listen, not to talk. Sometimes the conversation may lapse into silence. Try not to give in to the urge to fill the gap, but rather wait until the pupil does so. This can often lead to them exploring their feelings more deeply. Of course, you should interject occasionally, perhaps with questions to the pupil to explore certain topics they’ve touched on more deeply, or to show that you understand and are supportive. Don’t feel an urge to over-analyse the situation or try to offer answers. This all comes later. For now, your role is simply one of supportive listener. So, make sure you’re listening!

Don’t pretend to understand

“I think that all teachers got taught on some course somewhere to say ‘I understand how that must feel’ the moment you open up. YOU DON’T – don’t even pretend to, it’s not helpful, it’s insulting.”

The concept of a mental health difficulty such as an eating disorder or obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD) can seem completely alien if you’ve never experienced these themselves, but don't explore those feelings with the sufferer. Instead listen hard to what they're saying and encourage them to talk and you'll slowly start to understand what steps they might be ready to take in order to start making some changes.

Don't be afraid to make eye contact

"She was so disgusted by what I told her that she couldn't bear to look at me."

It's important to try to maintain a natural level of eye contact (even if you have to think very hard about doing so and it doesn't feel natural to you at all). If you make too much eye contact, the pupil may interpret this as you staring at them. They may think that you are horrified about what they are saying or think they are a 'freak'. On the other hand, if you don't make eye contact at all then a pupil may interpret this as you are disgusted by them – to the extent that you can't bring yourself to look at them. Making an effort to maintain natural eye contact will convey a very positive message to the pupil.

Offer support

"I was worried how she'd react, but my Mum just listened then said 'How can I support you?' – no one had asked me that before and it made me realise that she cared. Between us we thought of some really practical things she could do to help me stop self-harming."

Never leave this kind of conversation without agreeing next steps. These will be informed by your conversations with appropriate colleagues and the schools' policies on such issues. Whatever happens, you should have some form of next steps to carry out after the conversation because this will help the pupil to realise that you're working with them to move things forward.

Acknowledge how hard it is to discuss these issues

"Talking about my bingeing for the first time was the hardest thing I ever did. When I was done talking, my teacher looked me in the eye and said 'That must have been really tough' – he was right, it was, but it meant so much that he realised what a big deal it was for me."

It can take a young person week or even months to admit they have a problem to themselves, let alone share that with anyone else. If a pupil chooses to confide in you, you should feel proud and privileged that they have such a high level of trust in you. Acknowledging both how brave they have been, and how glad you are they chose to speak to you, conveys positive messages of support to the pupil.

Don't assume that an apparently negative response is actually a negative response

“The anorexic voice in my head was telling me to push help away so I was saying no. But there was a tiny part of me that wanted to get better. I just couldn’t say it out loud or else I’d have to punish myself.”

Despite the fact that a pupil has confided in you, and may even have expressed a desire to get on top of their illness, that doesn’t mean they’ll readily accept help. The illness may ensure they resist any form of help for as long as they possibly can. Don’t be offended or upset if your offers of help are met with anger, indifference or insolence, it’s the illness talking, not the pupil.

Never break your promises

“Whatever you say you’ll do you have to do or else the trust we’ve built in you will be smashed to smithereens. And never lie. Just be honest. If you’re going to tell someone just be upfront about it, we can handle that, what we can’t handle is having our trust broken.”

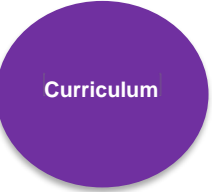

Above all else, a pupil wants to know they can trust you. That means if they want you to keep their issues confidential and you can’t then you must be honest. Explain that, whilst you can’t keep it a secret, you can ensure that it is handled within the school’s policy of confidentiality and that only those who need to know about it in order to help will know about the situation. You can also be honest about the fact you don’t have all the answers or aren’t exactly sure what will happen next. Consider yourself the pupil’s ally rather than their saviour and think about which next steps you can take together, always ensuring you follow relevant policies and consult appropriate colleagues.

(Questions taken from the Luton Mental Health and Emotional Wellbeing School Review tool)

Appendix I: Measuring the wellbeing of children and young people

School wellbeing measures pupils' perspectives on the overall values and ethos of their school. The values the school instils into their pupils include behaving well, working hard, helping others, and keeping fit and healthy. The ethos the school creates for the pupils includes fairness, friendliness, and confidence-building.

Emotional wellbeing measures pupils' happiness, and is based on questions exploring, for example, how they feel about how they look and whether they like the way they are. It measures their feelings (sadness, happiness, loneliness, etc.) and how well they feel they get on with others.

There are three main purposes for measuring wellbeing:

- 1. Evaluation: to consider the impact of whole school support and interventions-This approach is used to ensure the support put in place is helping children and young people with findings used to reflect on and improve practice. The method requires looking at outcome changes by measuring them before and after.
- 2. Identification: to identify individual pupils who might benefit from early support- Typically done using screening tools that pick up mental health problems.
- 3. Snapshot: to understand needs on aggregated basis, provide evidence for Ofsted and to plan whole- school support -Used to identify needs or strengths within whole cohorts e.g. across a year group. This method is commonly used for preventative work; inform planning decisions and/or providing evidence of good practice.

Public Health Luton provides schools with free access to the Luton bespoke SHEU survey. SHEU is an independent research unit that has been working with young people and with education and health professionals since 1977. The results provide evidence for the new OFSTED framework whilst also informing the local authority and supporting service.

Appendix K Emotional Based School Avoidance (EBSA)

What is Emotionally based school avoidance (EBSA)?

The term used throughout this guidance is emotionally based school avoidance (EBSA). It is a broad umbrella term used to describe a group of children and young people who struggle to engage with and/or attend a school setting due to emotional and systemic factors.

EBSA often leads to prolonged absences, difficulty in attending school and/or remain in lessons for an entire day. Some demonstrate inconsistent attendance, whilst others can attend and engage successfully with modified timetables and high levels of support.

Luton has produced Emotionally Based School Avoidance (EBSA) padlet with information for professionals and parents
